Dear Ms Cann,

Further to my reply of yesterday I would also like to thank you for bringing to my attention the fact that the FIPRA website describes me as "special adviser on maritime affairs". I had been wanting to write to FIPRA to inform them that I would like to bring to an end the agreement between them and me (which, as I told you yesterday, never actually materialized) but I never got down to do so. I have now just emailed FIPRA informing them that I want our agreement to be definitively terminated with immediate effect and that FIPRA removes my name and any reference to me from their website and from anywhere else my name may appear in FIPRA's records. I have also just informed the European Commission accordingly.

Regards,

Joe Borg

Dear Ms Cann,

I entered into an agreement with FIPRA to provide services to FIPRA as special advisor on the 10 August 2010 after obtaining clearance therefore from the European Commission. Less than three months after, and following resumption of lecturing duties at the University of Malta, I decided to suspend the agreement with FIPRA and FIPRA accepted. To date the agreement with FIPRA is still suspended. I have never received any remuneration or any other form of compensation whatsoever from FIPRA or any of its clients. I have never contacted the Commission on behalf of FIPRA or any of its clients.

Regards,

Joe Borg.
